Financial support for purchasing eIDs for sheep and goats

The Tag Incentive Payment (TIP) scheme provides discounted electronic identification devices for producers of sheep and goats in Western Australia. Fully accredited National Livestock Identification System (NLIS) black eIDs for 2024 will receive a $0.75 discount per eID via participating manufacturers. See your usual retailer.

By incentivising early adoption of eIDs, the goal is to:

- Help reduce some of the cost impact of the transition to eIDs.
- Maximise the number of sheep and goats in WA with eIDs.
- Enable downstream operators to test eID scanning equipment.

Background

Australian Agriculture Ministers agreed to move toward national implementation of mandatory individual electronic identification of sheep and goats by 1 January 2025.

The Department of Primary Industries and Regional Development is coordinating this process in WA.

As we move towards mandatory eID, livestock owners must continue to meet all requirements of the National Livestock Identification System which are required by law.

National rollout

More information about the national rollout of eIDs can be found at: agriculture.gov.au search Sheep and Goat Traceability Task Force.
